"Microchip cat flap". The instructions that accompany this product are very sparse and very difficult to follow. Although we finally got it up and running it took us a good few days to actually manage this — many attempts to register the cat had to be abandoned because we were all getting more and more frustrated as we tried to register his chip. We suggest that you learn the procedure by first registering the chip in the collar that is provided – as good practice before you attempt the cat – and make sure you register the cat before you actually put the unit in the door – then you won't have to keep waiting for the cat to come home. Good luck!127 Sept 2015 – I woold strongly advise anymore considering to buy one of three units to re-considering. In the collar that is not accompanied to the collar that is not accompani

"Good cat flap, but door flap not strong enough". This seemed to be a good, well-made cat flap that is also appealing to the eve. "Wind Stopper Dog Chew","The dog flap itself works fine but the wind stopper is a nightmare. It is made of the same plastic as the rest of the unit, but it's loose (avings with the flap) and located inside. We have two issues really. One, when the unit was first installed, the wind stopper bopped one of the pups on the nose and it took a fair bit of encouragement to convince her to give it another go. Two, since it's made of plastic and is loose, it's totally develoble and apparently resistable to puppies. My 6 month old pup chewed it in half. Annazon kindly replaced it, only for it to be chewed in half by the following day. I taped it with gerilla tape, and it was chewed again in the pupping the desert these everything in sight in case you're thinking less's a requer cheever). "Constantly open at the slightest breeze","This arrived quickly and was installed with little fuss. However, we have discovered that the flap opens at the slightest breeze and then stays open, allowing all of our rice warm ali inside to pour out. Even opening and closing the door in a normal fashion causes it to swing inwards and it doesn't settle back to a closed position, so I spend all of my time either going to close it manually or locking its but, which completely defeats the point of having EEDIT: This is a later update but having replaced it with a much better product for only a few more ÆL I wanted to leave a further bit of Info. "... around instead of just the two sides and worked like a charm for about 8 long years." Had an earlier model of this unit which had a magnetic seal all around instead of just the two sides and worked like a charm for about 8 long years. Then the magnetic seal on the flap broke off and would not stay shut. So ordered the same mode but now the design has changed and the magnet for keeping it shut is just on the sides making it a weaker hold and more prone to open with which indistilling was relatively easy though the instructions on how to cut the turned are wrong. The template provided which suggests to use the cut is to mark the lines around the turnel is not intultive.
